

Nathaniel Doane

As a born and raised local Cape Codder, I thrive on expressing through my work the real life experiences, as well idealistic experiences of interacting with the local marine environment. I have grown up with a passion understanding Marine Biology recreational fishing and exploring our inter coastal waters, and now for the past four years have been exploring farther offshore.

I have had the dream opportunity to help produce a National Geographic documentary "Return of The White Shark" and look forward to producing a body of work inspired from the many interactions with our local sharks, and the many adventures from these experiences.
